Crank Breaks Eighteen-Inch Hole in Storm Doors of Equitable Building and Crawls Through the Aperture.

FOUND SEEKING VAULTS OF A TRUST COMPANY

Knocked Down by Watchman, Alfred Leonard Says "Hallelujah!" After Which He Tells of Women Pestering Him.

Alfred Leonard squeezed himself through an aperture eighteen inches square which he had out in the glass panels of the storm doors of the Equitable Life building, at No. Broadway. How he got through the hole is a mystery, but stranger still is how he managed to squeeze through ragged aperture he made later by mashing the glass of the inner doors with a Belgian block.

After Leonard got into the buildhe made his way to the Mercantile Trust Company's offices, on the ground floor, and was trying to force his way in when William Collins, the company's night watchman, spied him. Collins had a big six-shooter under his nose in an instant. Leonard looked down the barrel and laughed. The night watchman floored him with a punch and stood on his chest for safety. That made Leonard exclaim "Halle-

Collins searched him, saw he had no weapons and yanked him to his feet. He noticed the man was coatless and in his stocking feet. He suspected he had a shamming burglar to deal with and took him to the lower floor, where all the watchmen in the building congregated. They questioned Leonard and he talked freely, giving plain evidence that he was unbalanced. He said he had 43,000,000 in the Mercantile Trust Company's vaults and twenty-five women were pestering him for it. He intended to take it out and take it to Europe out of their reach.

But as soon as we have calmed down a little we will consider that there is no reason why the automobile should not have crossed the arctic circle. There are none of the leebergs or frozen mountains that the papers allege. There are roads and railroads running beyond the circle, and you can ride to Gelivara in a sleeping car if your automobile breaks down. And when you have gone a long way beyond you will come to the interesting town of Hammerfest, with shops, bank, club, hotel, its hot summer day, which it is undergoing just now, and its mild winter nights, when fishing is carried on. Let us remember that during the arctic summer there is no reason why the gasoline should freeze. It is not likely that the travellers are suffering from mosquito bites, but quite sure that they are not suffering from frost bites. Yes, it's quite a remarkable thing that an automobile should be run over the wagen roads of Sweden, but let us sat lose our heads in the contemplation of this feat.
